

Evening Telegraph

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON. AT THE EVENING TELEGRAPH BUILDING, NO. 108 S. THIRD STREET.

TUESDAY, JUNE 11, 1867.

Maximilian's Impeachment of Napoleon the Third.

We imagine that Maximilian's final proclamation must be pleasant reading in the Tuileries just now! The unhappy prince, evidently in anticipation of a violent death, does not hesitate to speak in terms of equal plainness and bitterness of the perfidious French Emperor, through whose machinations he has been brought into his present wretched condition.

There has hardly been such a terrible arraignment of a monarch as this is recorded in history. It cannot but produce a profound impression throughout Europe. Nor can Napoleon the Third remain at ease under it. There is too much basis of fact for it to rest upon.

The approaching Judicial Campaign in our State. To-day the Democratic State Convention meets at Harrisburg to nominate a candidate for the position of Supreme Judge, made vacant by the expiration of the term of office of the Hon. George W. Woodward.

In a speech in Cincinnati, Judge Kelley threatened confiscation, whereupon the Memphis Ledger asks:—"How long would a man who had settled on a tract of land from which the owner had been driven by confiscation, live to enjoy it? Let Mr. Kelley try the experiment."

A CURIOUS ESCAPE.—It will be remembered that a story was telegraphed to us of a passenger on the Hudson River Railroad, who had a large sum of money on his person, and imagined that all his fellow-travellers were robbers.

The Next Presidency. The New York Times declares in favor of General Grant for the next Presidency, and treats its readers to a column-and-a-half eulogy of that distinguished officer.

Public sentiment tends strongly to the nomination of General Grant for next President. Unless something unusual happens to turn this rising tide of opinion, it will become irresistible before the party conventions meet.

We are opposed to a public journal, this far advance of the election, declaring for any candidate. We do not know what changes may take place before the meeting of the Convention in 1868, and, therefore, view with distrust any attempt to prejudice the case and compel the selection of a candidate.

THE CASE OF THE MURDERER COLE. The examination of General Cole on the charge of murdering Mr. Hiseock, a member of the New York Constitutional Convention, has resulted in his commitment for trial for murder in the first degree.

It would seem impossible, under any just administration of law, for this man to escape conviction and punishment. The fact of the murder is beyond dispute. It was committed in broad daylight, in a public house, and in the presence of a number of witnesses.

It is a singular thing, and well worthy of public attention, that the only justification set up in this and similar cases—the commission of adultery—is not even a criminal offense under the laws of the State of New York, and of many other States; and yet jury after jury has been found which has refused to convict in similar cases, until it has become almost a settled precedent that no jury will convict a man of murder who slays the polluter of his wife.

THE PROFUND SYMPATHY OF THE ENTIRE CIVILIZED WORLD will follow the expedition that yesterday left England for Africa in search of Dr. Livingstone. The latest news from Africa has fortunately revived the hope that the report of the death of the celebrated traveller is untrue.

WHITE MEN having refused to accept reapportionments in the city government of Mobile from General Pope, General Swayne has directed the vacancies to be filled with colored men. This is right, but it shows that loyal men should have been chosen at the first.

LOSSES BY FIRE IN MAY, 1867. The following is a list of fires in the United States during the month of May, 1867, involving a loss of $20,000 and upwards:

Table with 4 columns: Place, Description of Property, Loss, and Remarks. Lists various fires in New York, Philadelphia, and other cities.

MR. CHICKERING.—A correspondent of the London Star, writing from Paris, says:—"The unveiling of the statue of Liszt, which Mr. Chickering has ordered for his private residence in New York, added to the interest of an entertainment given by him at the Exhibition last Thursday (May 25)."

C., $180,000; the Venanzo National Bank of Franklin, Pa., $85,000; the Tennessee National Bank of Memphis, Tenn., $90,000; the First National Bank of Newton, Mass., $130,000; the First National Bank of St. Louis, Mo., $85,000; the First National Bank of New Orleans, La., $180,000.

THE POLI MOLL GAZETTE thinks that the Champ de Mars was appropriately chosen for an exhibition destined to bristle with cannon and other warlike appliances, and the Saturday Review declares that the most valuable lesson to be learned from great exhibitions is that the art of war is, after all, the progressive art, and that year by year cannon grow bigger, shells more murderous, and small arms more effective.
